

Over 200 employees of the Ministry of Defence, MIDR and INAP trained by the NAC this week

Over 200 people were trained by officers of the National Anti-corruption Centre (NAC) on integrity standards during 4 training sessions held this week.

The information and awareness-raising campaign "Integrity and Honor in the Service of the Homeland", carried out in partnership with the Ministry of Defence, was organized within the General Staff Regiment of the Ministry of Defence. The aim of the campaign is to promote integrity and transparency among military and civilian personnel, as well as to consolidate an organizational culture based on respect for the law and the prevention of corruption and related acts. As part of the activities, anti-corruption volunteers distributed information materials and promoted mechanisms for denouncing corruption acts.

Also, promoting integrity standards and making civil servants accountable in the exercise of their duties were the main topics addressed in the training organized for employees of the Ministry of Infrastructure and Regional Development.

At the same time, representatives of the Centre participated as trainers in training sessions organized by the National Institute of Public Administration, contributing to the development of professional skills of civil servants in the field of preventing and combating corruption.

The National Anti-corruption Centre continues its training and awareness-raising activities, to strengthen an integrity climate in public institutions.
