

The NAC launched two information campaigns in the field of security and education and trained about 300 people this week

The National Anti-corruption Centre (NAC) launched two information and awareness campaigns and trained about 300 people this week. Among the beneficiaries were civil servants, students and medical professionals, with the emphasis on respecting integrity standards and preventing the phenomenon of corruption.

The first campaign, "Integrity - Security for the Border", is carried out together with the Internal Protection and Anti-Corruption Service of the Ministry of Internal Affairs of the Ministry of Internal Affairs and aims to strengthen the culture of professional integrity, prevent corruption risks and promote ethical behavior among employees in the internal affairs system.

The second campaign, "Integrity in the Eyes of Children", is aimed at young children. The NAC officers and volunteers visited the "Neptun" summer camp in Leova district, where they taught children, through games and interactive activities, what it means to be an honest and responsible citizen.

In the field of health, anti-corruption officers organized an information course for managers of medical institutions, focused on promoting integrity and strengthening corruption prevention mechanisms. The activity was carried out with the financial support of Switzerland and in partnership with the Ministry of Health of the Republic of Moldova.

Also this week, a training was held for employees of the National Centre for Sustainable Energy, with the aim of strengthening professional integrity and preventing corruption risks in institutional activity.

The National Anti-corruption Centre continues its training and awareness-raising activities, with a view to strengthening a climate of integrity in public institutions.
