

Training course for anti-corruption volunteers of the National Anti-corruption Centre - “Integrity Scene”

The National Anti-corruption Centre (NAC) in collaboration with AO HOMECARE and AO CASMED organized a training course for anti-corruption volunteers, held under the title “Integrity Scene”. This educational program aimed to strengthen the knowledge and skills of volunteers in promoting ethical values and integrity in the health sector.

The event was held within the framework of the “Integrity for Health” campaign, part of the “Health Equity through Social Responsibility” project, implemented with the support of the Swiss Agency for Development and Cooperation. During the training, volunteers were involved in interactive activities, simulations and case studies aimed at helping them identify and prevent corruption risks in the medical field.

Through this initiative, the National Anti-corruption Centre and its partners aim to contribute to the formation of a responsible generation of young people who will promote transparency and ethics in public services, with a focus on the health sector.
