

The NAC trained over 350 officials from several public authorities this week

Over 350 employees were trained by officers of the National Anti-corruption Centre (NAC) on integrity standards during 8 training sessions held this week. Beneficiaries include civil servants, police officers, rescuers, medical professionals and staff from the penitentiary system. The sessions targeted institutions such as the Ministry of Agriculture and Food Industry, the North and Centre Regional Development Agencies, the State Agency for Intellectual Property, structures of the Ministry of Interior and health institutions.

The “Integrity for a Safe Society” campaign continued among officials of structures subordinate to the Ministry of Interior, through information sessions held at the Drochia Police Inspectorate and the territorial subdivisions of the General Inspectorate for Emergency Situations (IGSU).

In the field of health, the NAC continued promoting the “Integrity for Health” campaign. In this context, the NAC officers together with anti-corruption volunteers held discussions with medical personnel from the Glodeni Health Centre, focused on preventing corruption manifestations.

We remind that the purpose of the activities carried out by the NAC officers on the corruption prevention component is oriented towards cultivating and strengthening the climate of institutional integrity, by promoting anti-corruption and integrity policies.
